About

As a double major in product and multimedia design, I am passionate about exploring all aspects of design and pushing the boundaries of what is possible. Throughout my studies, I have taken on new challenges, resulting in experimental and conceptual projects that have exposed me to a wide range of scales, contexts, materials, and media. Through this exposure, I have learned the value of versatility in design and prioritizing user experience, raising awareness, and starting conversations in my design style. As a design student, I prioritize continuous learning and growth, and I am always seeking new opportunities to expand my skills and knowledge.

Education History
